The candidate will be expected to develop and apply methods for the global metabolic profiling in cells, biofluids and tissues by mass spectrometry (MS-metabolomics). He/she will also deal with tasks related with data processing, treatment and analysis, as well as metabolite identification and biological interpretation. Although a background in mass spectrometry and/or bioinformatics and biostatistics is considered advantageous, it is not essential, as the candidate will work together with the permanent FEM staff, who are expected to train the candidate during the first year of work so that he/she will be sufficiently autonomous to carry out his/her tasks. Since the candidate will work on project(s) in collaboration with a private company, the publication of the results is not guaranteed; while the results of methodological research can be the subject of scientific publications.
Duties	 Under the supervision of the PI, the selected researcher will deal with: Develop analytical MS-based untargeted and targeted metabolomic methods for the metabolic profiling of cells, biofluids and tissues; Record in a detailed and accurate manner how the data has been collected and where it is stored; Perform the quality control of the data produced; Process and analyze obtained data; Identify relevant metabolites; Perform biological interpretation of obtained results; Prepare regular written reports with data derived from performed analyses.
Keywords	Analytical method development, sample preparation and/or analysis/injection, data processing, statistical analyses, metabolite identification, biological interpretation.
Selection process	By qualifications as expressed in Annex A (maximum 30 points) and interview (maximum 70 points). The results of the selection are based on the sum of the points awarded for the two phases of the selection process.
Subjects covered in the interview	 During the interview, which will be conducted in English, the following knowledge will be verified (maximum 70 points): Mass Spectrometry (maximum 15 points); Analytical method development (maximum 20 points); Statistical analysis (maximum 10 points); Strategies for the identification and structural elucidation of metabolites (maximum 10 points); Safety in the chemical laboratory (maximum 10 points); General organisation and activity of FEM, rights and duties of employees (maximum 5 points). In the interview, the candidate must achieve a minimum score of 40/70 points.

Assessment of qualifications	 On the basis of the information provided exclusively in the application (Annex A), FEM will select the best 10 candidates evaluated based on the following criteria (maximum 30 points): Relevance of the Master thesis to the following topics: Metabolomics, Chemistry, Food Science, Pharmacy, Biotechnology, Biology, Agricultural Sciences or equivalent (maximum 5 points attributed according to the following criteria: 0 points=no match, 1.5=minimal match, 3=medium match, 5=perfect match); Relevance of the PhD thesis to the following topics: Metabolomics, Chemistry, Food Science, Pharmacy, Biotechnology, Biology, Agricultural Sciences or equivalent (maximum 5 points attributed according to the relevance of the PhD thesis to the following topics: Metabolomics, Chemistry, Food Science, Pharmacy, Biotechnology, Biology, Agricultural Sciences or equivalent (maximum 5 points attributed according to the relevance of the PhD thesis to the selection: 0 points=no match, 1.5=minimal match, 3=medium match, 5=perfect match); Scientific publications in journals with impact factor in the field of metabolomics or equivalent (0,5 points per item up to maximum 10 points.
